DOUGLAS.

Don't—don't—don't!

A troubled country weeps.

While peacefully he sleeps—

His history is the past.

And for human blood

His noble deeds and last

God and his country know.

The great civil war

His joy and sorrow o'er

His thrilling words no more

Shall answer our prayer;

No more his manly voice

Shall cheer the hearts he moved,

INTERESTING DETAILS OF DOUGLAS LAST HOURS.

At about eleven o'clock on Sunday morning, Bishop Duggan called at the request of friends to converse with

Mr. Douglas, who was then, for the first time, perfectly rational. Mr. Douglas immediately recognized the Bishop, and expressed his gratification at the visit.

Bishop Duggan soon asked:

"Mr. Douglas, have you ever been baptized according to the rites of any church?"

Mr. Douglas replied:

"Never."

The Bishop continued—"Do you desire to have mass said after the ordainment of the holy Catholic Church?"

The answer was:

"No; when I do I will communicate

with you freely."

The Bishop then turned to Mr. Rhodes and said:

"Do you think he is fully possessed of his mental faculties?" Mr. Rhodes replied: "I do not know—perhaps you had better ask him again." The Bishop repeated his question, to which Mr. Douglas answered, in strong, loud voice:

"You perhaps did not understand me.

When I desire it, I will communicate

with you freely."

The Bishop then remarked to Mr.

Rhodes, "He is undoubtedly in his right mind, and does not desire my offices." He then withdrew.

During the day (Sunday) Mr. Douglas seemed to be much better, and strong hopes were entertained of his recovery;

he slept most of the day, and in the evening seemed much refreshed. Mrs.

Douglas and Mr. Rhodes remained with him during the night. At about four o'clock on Monday morning he seemed much better, and his friends were much rejoiced. At the request of Mrs.

Douglas, Bishop Duggan again visited him. Soon after the Bishop entered, he approached the bedside, and addressing the patient said:

"Mr. Douglas, you know your own condition fully, and in view of your approaching dissolution do you desire the ceremony of extreme unction to be performed?"

Mr. Douglas replied:

"No, I have no time to discuss these things now."

The Bishop then withdrew. After he had gone, Mrs. Douglas requested Mr.

Rhodes to ask her husband if he desired the administration of any other clergyman.

Mr. Rhodes then said to Mr. Douglas:

"Do you know the clergyman of this city?" To which Mr. Douglas replied:

"I know of none."

Mr. Rhodes—"Do you wish to have either of any of them call to see you to converse upon religious subjects?"

Mr. Douglas—"No, I thank you."

Soon after this, about five o'clock,

he desired to have his position in bed changed, the blinds opened and the windows raised. Mr. Rhodes then came into the room, where he could look out on the street, and drink in the fresh morning air. For a few moments he seemed to gain new life. Then he began to sink away, his eyes partially closed, and in slow and measured cadences, with considerable pause between each accent, he uttered:

"Death!—Death!—Death!"

After this he seemed to revive slightly and Mr. Rhodes asked him whether he had any message to send to his mother,
